ReWa hosts a plant tour for T-Motion Dance Camp Students

Greenville, S.C. (July 28, 2010)—Renewable Water Resources (ReWa) recently hosted a facility tour for a group of eighteen students at the Mauldin Road Treatment Plant. The tour was led by Larry Camp and Jessica Brown who highlighted plant's recent technological upgrades, including the UV lights.

T-Motion owner Teresa Mattison accompanied the group of students on the tour and said, "It's very encouraging to be with young students who are interested in water treatment and renewable resources."

ReWa regularly offers facility and plant tours as part of its public education program. The tours are designed to increase the community's awareness about ReWa's services and how the community can participate in protecting our area's valuable aquatic resources. Tours are provided for local groups and/or individuals and topics can be tailored to fit the need of the group.

About T-Motion Dance Studio

T-Motion Dance Studio first opened its doors in February of 2007. Owners, Teresa & Victor Mattison, believed and shared a vision of becoming active in their community and providing more positive role models for the youth. After two prosperous years with a steady increase in student enrollment the business relocated in 2004 to a second facility with more than 100 students. Students have performed at different events & venues such as the Bronner Bros Hair Show, Laurens County Dance Competition, Woodruff Dance Competition, HBCU Classics, Springfest, Stop the Violence rally, different festivals & parades, churches, fashion shows, etc.

Renewable Water Resources (ReWa)

ReWa's goal is to promote a cleaner environment, and to protect the public health and water quality of the Upstate waterways, while providing and developing the necessary sewer infrastructure for the growing economy. ReWa serves more than 400,000 industrial, commercial and residential customers in Greenville County and parts of Anderson, Spartanburg, Pickens and Laurens Counties.
